Disaster Services
The Office of Disaster Services (ODS) plans and develops activities to support a coordinated mental health response for Missourians in disaster situations.
ODS offers preparedness training in disaster mental health such as psychological first aid to health and mental health care providers, school personnel, community-based volunteer organizations, emergency responders, law enforcement personnel, mental health consumers, and the faith-based community. It also develops fact sheets about the emotional impact of disasters on different populations and common reactions to disaster.
ODS is also involved in ongoing emergency planning for mental health needs, the needs of children, and continuity of operations.
